FOREWORD

In a sincere effort to reflect the memorable occasions of our high school days, the yearbook staff presents the 1965 Hourglass. Our moments of gaiety at our proms and dances, victory and defeat at our sporting events, somber moments of study, and the joy of being seniors are pictured on the following pages.

We, the staff of the 1965 Hourglass, truly hope that the memories captured in these photographs will be lasting and dear to each member of the class.

IN MEMORIAM

RICHARD WOLLER

There is an open gate at the end of the road
Through which each must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see
Our Father claims his own;
Beyond the gate our loved one
Finds happiness and rest,
And there is comfort in the thought
That a Loving God knows best.

IN DEDICATION

We, the class of 1965, wish to express our gratitude to our great friend and guidance counselor, Mr. Vincent J. Gallucci. Affectionately known to us as "Uncle Vinnie," he has dedicated himself to assisting each member of our class in reaching our goals and fulfilling our dreams for the future.

Whenever we had a problem, personal or otherwise, he was always there to hear us out and lend a helping hand. With deepest appreciation for the many favors he has done for us as individuals and as a class, we dedicate The Hourglass to Mr. Gallucci.

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE AND MR. SHEA FRONT: Mr. Lynch, Mr. Shea, Mr. Keen, chairman; and Mr. Connolly. REAR: Mr. Hartnett, Mr. Brewster, and Mr. Roberti.

Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Shea.

To the Class of 1965:

Your steady growth into fine young adults has been the source of much satisfaction to the members of the School Committee and the School Administration during the past four years.

We have admired your energetic drive to improve the life of the school, to obtain high scholastic attainment, to pursue meaningful extracurricular activities, and to perform heart-warming deeds in behalf of your fellow students and teachers.

We salute you on one of the memorable occasions of your life — graduation — and wish you success and happiness in your future endeavors!

Yours very truly,

Harold S. Shea

Harold S. Shea

Congratulations to the Class of 1965 upon your graduation from High School! May the future unfold for you in health, joy, and success in your every endeavor.

The Class of 1965 has a dual distinction — first, in concluding the final phase of your education at Wilmington High School, and secondly being the last of forty-six classes to have had the privilege of being taught by Miss Laura N. Marland.

Dedication has been a deep-rooted trait in the sterling character of Miss Marland. As the years roll by, may she hold an honored place in your memory. Treasure her teaching, and may her guidance and example be a continued source of inspiration to you, as it has been to her colleagues.

Bernard P. McMahon

Mr. Bernard P. McMahon
Principal

Congratulations and best wishes on your graduation from high school. I sincerely hope that each and every one of you will succeed in your ambitions.

You are graduating at a historical time in the annals of Wilmington High School, for as you leave to make your way in life, so also leaves one whose ideals you might well adopt to guide you successfully through life.

Miss Laura Marland retires this year after forty-six dedicated years in the service of your high school. There is not enough money in this world to pay this wonderful person for the good she has done and the hours she has toiled to make it possible for the youth of Wilmington to become more intelligent and decent citizens.

Fortunate are you who have been privileged to have attended her classes. You would do well to copy her code of ethics.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

A determined basketball squad, under the direction of Coach Dicey, tried their best in each game, but were unable to gain a high position in the league standings. Although their record of 2 wins and 12 losses seems to indicate a dismal season, it must be taken into consideration that three teams in the Lowell Suburban League qualified for the Tech. Tourney, which indicates the high quality of play maintained.

Seniors on the squad were Co-Captains Ed Latta and Bill Ritchie, Dave Orndoff, Bruce Mutchler, Cory Coombs, Ken Butler, Tom Manuel, and Lynn Billings.

The 1965 Lowell Suburban League Champions

Under the capable coaching of Miss Georgia Dadoly, the Girls' Varsity Basketball Team completed their season with an undefeated-untied record of 16-wins, no losses, and captured the Lowell Suburgan League Championship. The fabulous squad burned up the court with an amazing exhibition of dribbling, accurate passing, and a substantial shooting percentage. Their ability to play as a team, not as individual stars, contributed to their great success.

Seniors on the squad were Captain Lucille Huston and Nancy Hall on defense, and Maria Ferrara on offense. The high scorers were Juniors Sandy Burns with 218 points and Sharon Justice with 126 points. With these hoopsters returning next year, another winning season seems likely for the Wildcats.

ICE HOCKEY

The Hockey Team, Coach Cogan and Coach Pollard.

Ice fever gripped the student body for the first time in the school's history, as the Merrimack Valley Hockey League was formed. The addition of this contact sport to the competitive curricula brought many Wilmington fans to the new sports arena to watch their team in action. The squad completed the season with 8 wins, 4 losses, and 3 ties, which put them in third place in the league standings behind Masconomet and Billerica.

Senior center Pete Emery was leading scorer and Most Valuable Player in the league. He and senior defenseman Dick Page also gained berths on the All-Star Team. Other seniors on the squad were Paul Currier, Jack Garden, Gene Dussault, Tom Hand, Wayne Hamilton, Dennis DeMaggio, and Nino Trimarchi.

Wayne Hamilton clears the puck out of the defensive zone.

Goalie Leo O'Connell desperately tries to block the shot.

SALUTATORY

Members of the school committee, Mr. Shea, Mr. McMahon, teachers, parents, Reverent clergy, fellow classmates, and invited guests:

It is a great honor for me, on behalf of the class of 1965, to welcome you to our graduation exercises. For some, today's ceremony will be the conclusion of their formal education; for others, the conclusion of twelve years of preparation for further education. The graduates gathered here today are an acknowledgement of your guidance, love, and care.

Looking back we cannot help but appreciate and admire those who have led us toward this day. Parents and teachers alike deserve our utmost gratitude for what they have done for us. Leading us by the hand, prodding us from behind when necessary, these people have helped us realize and accept the importance of an education. They have helped us, through their constant surveillance and assistance, to obtain the ultimate goals of any student.

Looking ahead we experience many emotions: fear for our continued success, anxiety over our new-found independence, but above all, hope for a happy life. From this hope stems faith — faith in ourselves, in our fellow human beings, and in God. Without this faith we will have nothing to grasp, no straw to clutch if our dream world crumbles.

Yesterday and today were sheltered worlds. We walked proudly, carefree in the sun, rarely considering evil, seeing only good. Ignorant of the worries of others, we roamed in the warmth and serenity of protection. Oblivious to conflict and secure in the palm of experience's hand, we had little thought for the future.

Tomorrow is another world — a world wrought with responsibility, strife, and worry. Suddenly we are confronted with all we have been sheltered from for twelve years. Thrust abruptly from experience's abode, we must build our own defenses against the bigotry and greed of the outside. We may no longer depend on adults for total guidance, for we have become young adults ourselves.

But we are not alone. There are some who will fail. There are many more, however, who will not fail and will not be discouraged by the numerous set-backs in life.

For twelve years we have been readied for today's ceremony. Our teachers have spent many hours assisting us to develop our minds and bodies. These hours have been fruitful; we, here, are the visible proof of those hours. The greatest amount of credit, however, goes to our parents.

As parents they have loved us, taught us, and provided for us. Love comes naturally to a parent, instruction also, but sufficient provision is a life-long struggle. We may never realize what sacrifices they have made, material as well as emotional. The youth of today tends to forget that his parents are more than stern protectors. His memory lapses when he tries to recall moments of care and understanding. But they do not forget. They have always been near to supply help when we wanted it, consolation when we needed it, and love. It is through them that we have found the strength and desire to continue, for in today's world of competition we have needed both.

They have been our examples of manhood and womanhood. We can only continue to show our respect for them, for this is the best way we know to express our love and gratitude for all they have accomplished. Our parents molded us. If we, as adults, can only do as well with what God gives us, perhaps the succeeding generation of the world will live in peace and love of mankind.

JOANNE BAKER

CLASS ESSAY

Nineteen centuries ago, Juvenal, the foremost Roman satirist once said, "Mens sans in corpore sano." This well-known but seldom heeded phrase translated into English simply means "a sound mind in a sound body." Today many of us do not realize the extreme signficance of this quotation, and very few of us make an effort to exemplify it. We should be aware, however, of the fact that science has shown a definite link between mental and muscular conditions, and that most experts agree that the better a person's physical well-being, the happier he is likely to be.

In educating the children of our country, equal consideration should be given to both the intellectual and physical aspects of the child's health, without an undue emphasis on one to the exclusion of the other. Though a man be capable of performing great feats on the athletic field, he is not a "whole" man in the true sense of the word if he is not able to think and reason effectively. It is also true that a keen mind in a body which has been allowed to deteriorate will be of little benefit to the individual.

"A sound mind in a sound body!" How well these words might serve as a guideline for all Americans, young and old. Students require sound health to learn, adults to earn a livelihood and to participate effectively in our society. It is undoubtedly true that these words signify the most important criterion for the selection of this country's astronauts who are endeavoring to reach the unknown realms of outer space. These men have been trained to attain a high degree of mental and physical proficiency.

Both physical and mental exams are required to enter the armed services of our country. The United States is certainly not going to allow some unintelligent, illiterate person into its forces, nor does it intend to permit a physically weak individual defend its flag. These men or women who do enter the military ranks must have a sound mind and body.

When we graduate from school and go on to college or work, our physical and mental well-being cannot be neglected. Health, the most priceless possession of all, certainly cannot be ignored. Neglect of our bodies can only lead to degeneration of both the mind and the body. It is extremely worthwhile to continue our education or enter into some admirable field of work, but all the prosperity and knowledge which one may possess cannot replace the satisfaction of being a healthy individual. We owe it to ourselves, our families, and our country to remain healthy by always retaining "a sound mind in a sound body."

PETER EMERY

VALEDICTORY

One of the many strange traits common to the high school senior is alledged to be the quality of ingratitude or at least forgetfulness. This characteristic is attributed to the student's misinterpretation of scholastic responsibility as a form of punishment. The student, unaware of his education's true value, often replaces thanks with resentment. I, however, feel that this year we must pause to give credit where it is due.

To establish the fact that there is a cause for credit we merely have to cite our increase in knowledge. Surely, those responsible should be recognized. We must acknowledge the work of our school system in general and our teachers in particular for bearing the immense task of preparing a new generation for life. These dedicated people unselfishly impart as much of their knowledge as possible to today's youth so that tomorrow's world might benefit. Our teachers do not claim to be or produce geniuses. They do, however, through experience and training, incite and guide natural talents. Despite their seemingly superhuman quantities of knowledge, patience, and understanding, these devoted people never abuse their position with arrogance. Instead, they achieve a genuine respect by their own integrity and courtesy. Thus, today's teachers provide more than knowledge. They give the youth of this nation an example of the benefits achieved in a wholesome soul and a creative mind. They give youths their first insight into the adult world. The student is shown the requirements for life in today's society. By this molding of students' characters, our teachers have a personal and powerful hand in forming future generations. They are the ones who have tried and always will try to provide a better world through better people.

Now, on behalf of the graduating class of 1965, I would like to break the image of the ungrateful senior by giving these unselfish donors of knowledge our heartiest, "Thanks, for making us better people."

PAUL BANNISTER

CLASS WILL

We, the class of 1965, being totally insane and having no memory at all, nevertheless do hereby make our last will and testament.

Since we realize what our beloved principal has gone through during the past four years, we bequeath to him a case of aspirin to help him relax and something more potent to help him sleep. Our principal will also be pleased to note that, Richard (the Lion-Hearted) Page, out of his tremendous generosity, is returning control of Wilmington High School to him.

To Mr. Sullivan, our class advisor, we entrust a sign measuring 50′ x 15′, reading, "Yea, Juniors. Best in W.H.S.," hoping that someday it will be seen and appreciated by those who were disappointed when it failed to make its first appearance. In a like manner, a sign reading, "Come to the Ventricle Venture," is passed on to Lenny Galvin hoping that no one will ever know which junior helped us put it up.

Bobby Nolan leaves a pack of Winstons to coaches Bellissimo and Ritchie. Ex-co-captains Page and Newhouse leave a successful football season to future captains Keene and Anderson, with the hope that fewer people will be kicked off for fewer reasons than in the past year. In a like manner ex-basketball captains Latta and Ritchie leave a winning season to Arnold and Pote. (The question is: where did they leave it?)

Sally McDonough leaves a box of paper clips to Mr. Curley for future snacks. Barbara McLain entrusts her height to Kathy Kenny and her baton to her sister Beverly. Charlotte Rich and Gerry O'Reilly leave their laughs to haunt the halls of W.H.S. forever. Gene Dussault leaves everyone . . . eventually.

Ken Butler leaves his great basketball skill to Mr. Dicey, hoping that he will give it to a deserving freshman. Doug Dayton passes on a roll of tape to John Brown to bind the ankles of the basketball team. And, Peter Emery leaves his left fibia tendon to hockey.

Tom Manuel entrusts his seat on the basketball bench to "Gunner Harrington," and Tony Fantasia leaves to future benchwarmers a record of 31 non-playing games. Nancy Souza leaves her cheerleading uniform to next year's captain; Dotty Hersom leaves her cheerleading uniform to next year's squad; Lillian Halpin leaves her uniform, number 13, to her sister Janis; and Nancy Connolly leaves her home-made cheerleading uniform to Miss Brandt.

Joyce Chinn leaves her gym suit to Carmie Ruggierio, the same one that Carmie's sister Carol left Joyce last year. Maria Ferrara leaves her knee guard to trick-kneed basketball players, and Jack Garden leaves a roll of tape to trick-mouthed hockey players.

Dotty Marchant leaves a two year supply of hot dogs to her brother Bobby; Dotty Sugges leaves to the underclassmen all the spinach they can stomach. Janice Lee entrusts a carload of cheeseburgers to her brother Jackie. Joyce Chisolm passes on to Shirley D'Errico all the school lunches, and Bruce Mutchler hasn't left a morsel of food on his plate for four years.

Anita Rosa leaves her stilts to anyone with a 6′7″ boyfriend, and Mike Kasabuski leaves his kneepads to anyone with a 3′4″ girlfriend. Pan Kelly bequeathes a bowl of pudding to Bert, Barbara, and Paulette, and a bottle of hair groomer to her brother.

Frank Nigro entrusts a gallon of Old Spice to Jimmy Shine. Trudy Montouri leaves all her overdue homework assignments to any underclassmen capable of getting them in on time. Della Richards passes on her seat on the gym bleachers to the cheerer for next year's basketball captain, and her moments of jealousy to some unfortunate underclassman; Billy Ritchie leaves all his calm moments in a thimble. Joanne Lally leaves one empty ice cream cone to Kathy Moore and a gym suit from the seventh grade to Sandy Jensen. Richard Denault leaves a 30 gallon steel drum to Mr. Sullivan. Richard also leaves the road at 90 m.p.h.

The sextet at Wednesday 3 lunch leaves its table and discussions to next year's seniors. Beverly Ayotte bequeaths to Mr. Kelley all the gum he never caught her chewing and a four leaf clover to next year's yearbook staff. Margaret Harding leaves a bottle of tranquilizers to next year's yearbook editor. Frank Ingram passes on his seat in Mr. Kelley's class and his Wooly Bully sweatshirt to Kathy Kenny. Bruce Camber leaves gladly to a more conventional institution. Gene Dussault and Stephen Phillips leave Dr. Farello a fellowship in 109 and a combined average of 56.

Lynn Billings entrusts one pair of sneakers to Mr. Day. Diana, Joyce, Dotty, and Joyce leave their telephone numbers on the office bulletin board to any new male teachers. Don Kelloway leaves his telephone number on the Ladies' Room door for anyone who is interested.

Mary Anne McLaughlin leaves her books to Cousin Lillian. Lorraine and Donna leave Dorsey their gift to gab. Dotty Campbell passes on to Pete Mazzapica, Harvey Pearlstein, Nancy Picanso, and the rest of the gang the memories of "The Majestics." Bruce Mutchler leaves his six shooters to brother Bill hoping he will soon learn how to use them.

Danny Rheaume leaves Fay and his nephew to fight with Mr. Sullivan and his son. Diana D'Errico bequeaths to Nancy Picanso the radiator seat in the girls-room. Pat Pratt passes on all her tardy slips to underclassmen who have a hard time awakening. Dolores Enos entrusts the rocks on Church St. to Mr. Eagar. Janice Ely leaves her brother to a certain girl. George Casselo leaves the drug store roof to anyone else who feels like playing mountain goat.

Nancy Cole bequeaths a new set of Tinker Toys to Mr. Kelley. Lynn and Ann bequeath their locker to any deserving couple, and Gregg Lane also leaves his locker to any deserving couple.

Janet and Jane bequeath their pedestel to Starr, Lillian, and Joan, seeing no use for it after the Class of '66. Jane leaves the knack of building tin pyramids to Joan and Lillian hoping they will improve with practice. Cheryl Silvers leaves everything but Tony. Pete Emery leaves Dolores to the Junior Variety Show of '66.

Tom Hand entrusts his brother Bob to the Band. Paul Bannister leaves a gallon of coffee, a carton of cigarettes, and a crying towel to Mr. Coffin. Mike Kasabuski leaves all the butts in the air vents to Mr. Day. Ruth Cicciu leaves first place in graduation line to her sister, and Paul Currier leaves signs, alarm clocks, tents, and sleeping bags to the underclassmen to keep the office guessing. Dave Orndoff leaves one tarpaper shack to his grandmother. Paul Bannister leaves one slightly used test tube of nitric acid and the number zero to Mr. Kelley. Jack Garden leaves for Florida the day after graduation. Al Cuoco leaves Lillian Piazzola a barrel of wine, a pot of lasagna, and a Plymouth convertible with a case of the hiccoughs.

We, as a class, pass on to Mr. Gallucci: a bag of Tootsie Rolls, a private office with accommodations for either collegians or rats, and a million dollars. To the office we leave peace, to the Juniors we entrust our money, to the Sophomores we leave 500 unused golf balls, and to the Freshmen we leave our good looks. To Mr. Driscoll we leave a promise of never returning, and to Mr. Sullivan we leave a long list of stunts that will never be tried again.

AL COUCO

CLASS HISTORY

Regardless of what impression we as a class may leave, one thing is certain — we have created some vivid memories during our four years as students of Wilmington High. It will be many years before another class will come along that will be as creative or as spirited as the class of 1965 has been. Thus, we may review with pride our accomplishments of the past four years.

In September of 1961, we returned to school, but now we were freshmen and thus accorded more privileges. In the spring of our freshman year, we held our first class meeting where Mr. Sullivan was introduced as our class advisor. At a later meeting we elected Kenneth Butler as president, Bruce Camber as vice-president, Frances DeLisle as secretary, and Keith Gunning as treasurer.

During our sophomore year, we were given more of an opportunity to participate in the school activities. Elected that year as class officers were Kenneth Butler, president; Janet Harrison, vice-president; Frances DeLisle, secretary; and Keith Gunning, treasurer. In December came our first opportunity to work together on a class activity, our Christmas dance, the Candy Cane Twist.

By our junior year, it became evident that our class was well on the way to making a name for itself. Because of the variety of personalities to be found in our class, we were equally successful in the classroom and on the athletic field. The class officers we selected to guide us through so important a year were Richard Page, president; Albert Cuoco, vice-president, Frances DeLisle, secretary; and Maria Ferrara, treasurer.

A profound sadness descended upon the students of W.H.S. in the wake of President Kennedy's assassination. Out of respect to his memory, we postponed our Thanksgiving Dance. Our rescheduled dance, the Plymouth Rock, was the first activity of the new year, held on January 18, 1964.

All our efforts were next concentrated on preparations for the Junior Prom. On March 20, the gym was transformed into a scene of underwater fantasy for "A Night in the Blue Lagoon." Patricia Jaquith presided as our queen. Her attendants were Dotty Hersom, Francine Lynch, Barbara McLain, Charlotte Rich, Anita Rosa, and Mary Torredimare.

As spring approached, we anticipated that week which we could call our own. Excitement mounted as everyone waited to see if we could outclass the seniors. By the week's end everyone had to concede that we not only outclassed them, but had conducted one of the most successful Junior Weeks in the history of W.H.S.

On Monday, May 25, our banquet was held during which Mr. McMahon presented awards to those students who had obtained the highest averages in their classes. Tuesday was Tag Day. On Wednesday we showed our talents for fashion innovation in observance of Crazy Day. The greatest interest, however, centered around our Junior Variety Show. For months the cast had been rehearsing, and as rumors leaked out, everyone decided it might be a show worth seeing. The performances surpassed all expectations. Our class displayed their talents in an amazing variety of skits. Who will ever forget that troupe of graceful ballerinas, the wild music of the Discords, or Wilmington's own Beatles? The show was supervised by Stuart Silverman and Margaret Harding provided the piano accompaniment.

In no time at all our senior year was upon us. All the class officers whom we had elected in our Junior year remained in office. Our first dance of the year was the Pumpkin Puddin, which was held on October 29. Under the direction of Miss Fowler, the Senior Play, "The Peace Corps Girls" was held December 10 and 12. Against the exotic panorama of a native Phillipine village, the cast gave an excellent performance. Our second dance of the year was the Ventricle Venture, held on February 12. Some of the more daring members of the publicity committee hung a sign on the school announcing the dance to all passers-by.

Graduation practice commenced the week we returned from vacation. When Mr. McMahon was finally satisfied that we no longer looked like potato farmers, the boys brought a fitting end to the entire episode by burying Barbara's baton.

The final week of school brought to a close our class activities. On Wednesday, June 2, the Senior Banquet was held. June 4 was the date of the Senior Prom, held at the Hillview Country Club in North Reading. It marked the first time a class had held its prom outside the school. Graduation exercises were held on June 6.

As a class we have much to be proud of. We realize that we owe much of our success to the advice of our advisor, Mr. Sullivan, and our guidance advisor, Mr. Gallucci. Let us continue the successful story of our life as a class into the histories of our own lives.

JOAN DRAHEIM

CLASS PROPHECY

Now Channel Seven interrupts its regularly schedule to present this program of vital importance:

"Well, here we are, ladies and gentlemen, at the world famous Firnedly's Restaurant, where the Wilmington High School Class of 1965 is celebrating its 10th reunion. Here is CBS reporter, the former editor of the Alpha, Miss Joyce Drew, who will interview and comment on the famous personalities here tonight. Take it away, Miss Drew."

"Good evening. Tonight our guest of honor is the President of the United States, Richard Page. Mr. Page, could you tell us what the other class officers are doing with themselves lately?"

"Well, that man wearing the 'walking billboard' type of sign is Al Cuoco, my vice-president. He's campaigning for next term and his slogan is 'Don't be a Goup.' Maria Ferrara owns an Italian Restaurant, where she butters up spaghetti like she used to do with teachers. Fran DeLisle is a secretary, who is also a weekly contestant on Community Audition."

"How have our athletes done, Mr. Page?"

"Just fine. On the Boston Patriots we have produced fullback Jim Newhouse, quarterback Bill Ritchie, halfback Pat Lippiello, water-boy, Bob Nolan, and trainer, Mike Kasabuski. In baseball, Dennis DeMaggio, Cory Coombs, Bob Smith, and Frank Ingram were American League All-Stars this season. Dave Orndorff, Ken Butler and Ed Latta led the Celtics to the 17th consecutive NBA championship. Pete Emery and Jack Garden were top scorers in the NHL, as they helped the Bruins capture their first Stanley Cup since the invention of the puck."

"What is that driving into the parking lot?"

"That's a gold limousine carrying Joanne Baker and Jeff Sheerin back from Hollywood, where they just won Academy Awards. Jeff's still in those same old red-striped long johns he wore in our class play. And here come our class sweethearts, Ann Fuller and Lynn Billings — still holding hands after all this time! Charlotte Rich and Geri O'Reilly are under contract as the cackling chickens on the Kellogg's corn flakes commercial. Lucy Huston has filled Miss McCarthy's sneakers. Richard Denault has replaced Joey Chitwood as Liberty Mutual's demolition driver. Richard Cone owns an ice-cream parlor. Eric Wells has struck oil. Billy Gordon models clothes from designer Carol Carrasco's collection entitled 'Pants for the Man Who Hates to Breathe.' Woman-hater John Stanley is married and the proud father of six daughters. Dotty Campbell and Joyce Chinn own a silverware shop — featuring antiques which they removed from our beloved cafeteria. Alice Perry, Ruth Ciccui, Sheila Wallace, Beverly Ayotte, and Nancy Hall are all school teachers, who tell jokes like Mr. Kelley, scratch their noses like Mr. Hamilton, and get kids out of trouble like Mr. Gallucci. Dolores Enos, Janis Iovanna, Barbara McLain and Nancy Henderson are all successful nurses who also tell Kelley type jokes, just to needle the patients. Wayne Gardner is still wearing his orange socks, but still insists he's collegiate. Paul Bannister is Dean of Slippery Scum College, and Judy Croke owns a most successful frog hatchery."

"Well, we certainly do have a star-studded class, Mr. President, and we can contribute it all to you because, after all, you were the one who always told us to smarten up at our class meetings."

"I don't deserve all the credit, Miss Drew. That gray-haired man over there helped us too. That's Mr. Sullivan, the famous Irish chemist."

"Now, the Discords, featuring Tommy Hand, Glenn Milley and Owen Marr will conclude this, our tenth reunion, with a selection which has been near and dear to all of us—our own class song, 'Louie, Louie,' after which we shall return to our regularly scheduled program. Good-night."
